3-Billion-Dollar Defense Bond and Tax Bill Is to Be Enacted

Pay-as-We-Go for Arms

The Lady Walks Out

Biggest news today — bigger than Belgium's surrender — is the news from Washington. The government has agreed upon a 3-billion-dollar bond-and-tax bill to finance our national defense program. Presumably the federal authorities have decided that instead of borrowing they will put it on a pay-as-you-go plan. Which in the light of history is a wise decision, for lightness of debt is just as vital to national defense as the weight of arms.

And how important it is for every nation to be adequately armed is disclosed by today's tragic development in Europe.

Yerger School to Present Program

Proceeds to Help Send Students to State Meet

Yerger High School Vocational judging team, quartette, and delegates are without funds to attend the State Judging Contest and N. F. A. Convention that is to be held at A. M. & N. College, Pine Bluff May 31. The local chapter is presenting a musical program Wednesday night at Yerger High School to raise travel expenses.

The judging team composed of Pink Carrigan, N. Doss, Wilma Harris, and Alvin Trenton Cooper, has the highest average of the five district of the State. This score was determined by the State Vocational Department from the scores of the five district preliminary contests held this spring. Carrigan has the highest individual score of the State. No other school has ever been able to place three high individuals on a district team.

The quartette composed of Thomas English, W. C. Easter, C. L. Flounery, and A. J. Piggee, will represent Yerger high school and the Southwest Arkansas District vocational departments in the singing contest.

Amos Henry, graduating president, N. Doss, president for N. F. A. Chapter for 1940-41, Calvin Coleman, treasurer, are delegates to the State Convention.

Second Rise for Red River Due at Fulton This Week

River Falls Slightly to 22.2 Feet Tuesday Morning

1.8 INCHES RAIN

Heavy Downpour in Territory to the North

Red river dropped from a stage of 23 feet at Fulton Monday to 22.2 feet Tuesday morning and will show a further drop for the next two days, but a second rise is coming downstream following general rains north of here, the Shreveport government river forecaster reported Tuesday.

Flood stage on Red river at Fulton is 25 feet.

Although Denison, Texas, head of the river, failed to report Tuesday, a report from Arthur City, Texas, first point below Denison, said there had been 1.2 inches of rain there since 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Red river stood at 16 feet Tuesday at Arthur City, a rise of two feet since 7 a. m. Monday.

At Index, Arkansas, there was .8 inch of rain up to 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, but the river fell 1.1 feet since Monday—indicating the second rise was still far north of this area.

At White Cliffs, on Little river, this tributary stream which empties into Red river about thirty miles north of Fulton, 1.2 inches of rain was reported to 7 a. m. Tuesday, and Little River stood at 25.3 feet, up .3 foot since Monday.

Ouachita College Holds Exercises

Honorary Degree is Awarded Rev. J. H. Bennett

Ouachita College held its commencement exercises Monday morning in the auditorium of First Baptist church of Arkadelphia with Pat Neff as commencement speaker. The degree of doctor of divinity was awarded to the Rev. J. H. Bennett of Hope.

A large audience of people from over the state of Arkansas was in attendance to hear the address of the Honorable Pat Neff, former Governor of Texas and now President of Baylor University. He took as his subject, "What Is Man?" and presented a challenge to the graduates to go through life on the highest plane possible.

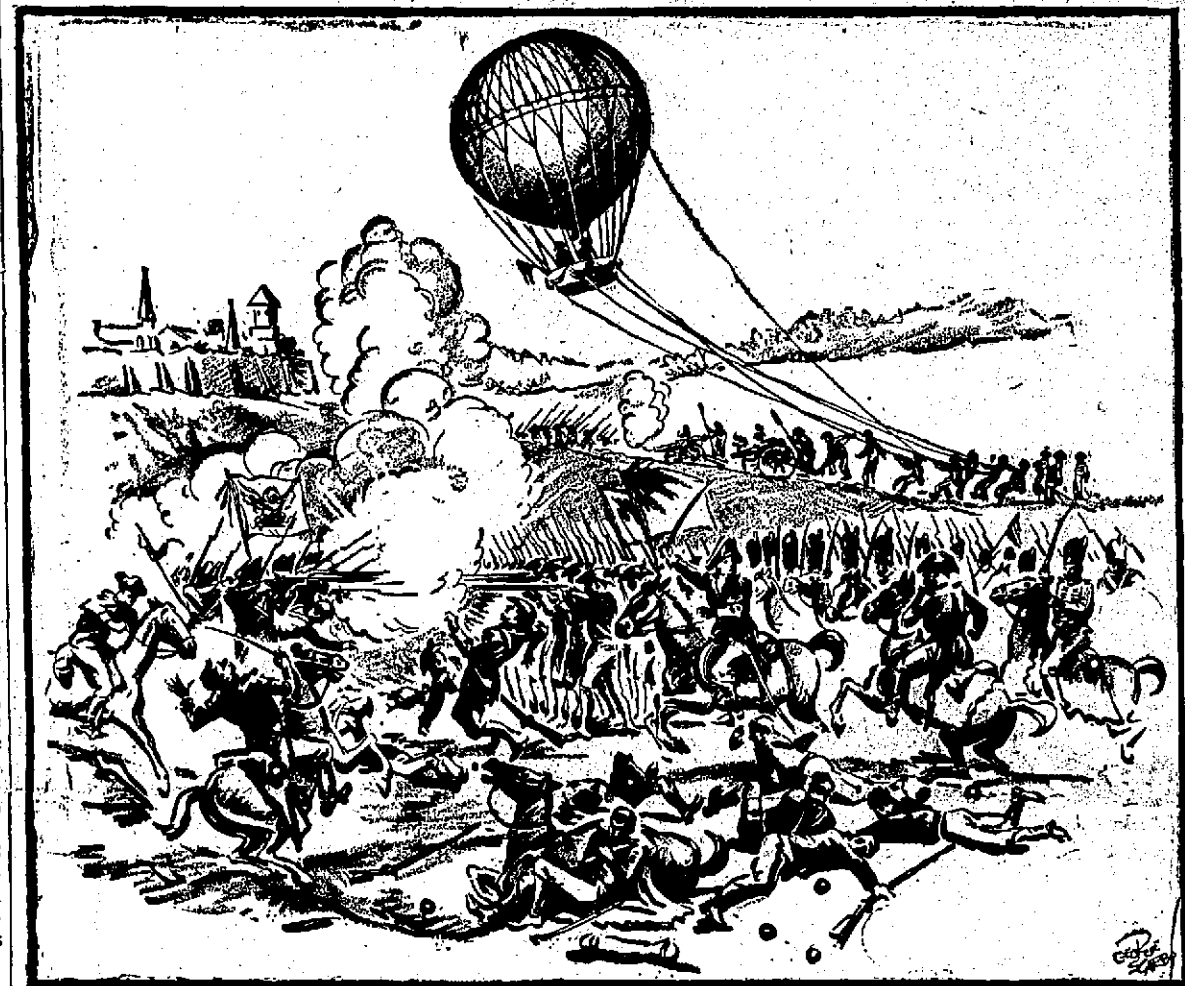

The Rev. J. H. Bennett of Hope had been selected by the administration to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity this year at the commencement exercises. Mr. C. Hamilton Moses, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Dr. J. R. Grant, President of the College, placed the cap and gown and other symbols of the degree upon him.

The Rev. Mr. Bennett is one of the three surviving members of the first four year class to be graduated from Ouachita College. His class, the class of 1890, was celebrating its half-century anniversary at this year's commencement exercises. Brother Bennett has pastored numbers of churches in various parts of Arkansas and neighboring states.

It was announced at the commencement exercises and at the Alumni luncheon that progress was being made on the Campaign for $150,000 to release an indebtedness on a portion of the endowment income, to be used for operating expenses, and to erect for the campus. Although several churches have completed their part of the Campaign the total for the state was not announced. The Campaign will continue to be pressed with the ultimate aim of the full amount of the $150,000 to be raised by the late fall.

Vacation Bible School is Opened

Large Groups Attend Monday and Tuesday's Meet

Notwithstanding the rain the Vacation Bible School opened at First Baptist Church with an attendance of 132 on Monday and 149 on Tuesday.

Following the procession under the leadership of Miss Andrine Farmer, Educational Secretary of the Church and Principal of the Bible School, the boys and girls entered, the auditorium of the Church for a worship period and then went to their departmental rooms for Bible teaching, handwork, and the character stories. The Departmental Superintendents are Mrs. Hugh Jones, Mrs. W. R. Hamilton, Mrs. A. C. Bennett, and Mrs. Alton Honeycutt.

Boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 16 are eligible to attend the school. Those who have been unable to enroll due to the rainy weather may still be enrolled. The school will continue until Friday of next week, closing with a commencement exercise on Friday night in the church auditorium.

The story of military aviation goes back that far, even farther. For centuries man has planned to win wars in the air.

The priest, Francisco Lana, had a plan, too. He was first to propose the vacuum balloon, but after he conceived it, the possibilities frightened him. So, wrote the priest in 1670, grimly prophetic:

"No city can be secure against any such attack. Ships may at any time be placed directly over it, and descending, may discharge soldiers. The same would happen to private houses and ships of the sea."

The priest prayed that "God will not suffer such an invention to take effect," but more than a century later Napoleon was putting it into effect in the French Revolution. He was the first to use the air arm in war.

The French army in 1794 had a "Brigade commander in charge of aeronautics." He "spotted" for the French artillery at the battle of Fleurus in Belgium on June 26, 1794, was a decisive factor in bringing French victory with his flag signals.

That success inspired Napoleon. He planned the first invasion of Britain by air with a huge balloon carrying at least 4000 soldiers, and ample supplies. The Germans planned the same thing at about the same time, visualizing fleets of balloons dropping whole armies and a projectile "against which no nation would have adequate defense."

Other nations considered the air arm. The Austrians are said to have bombarded Venice with balloons "torpedoes" in 1849 when they couldn't get their guns up close enough. Balloons were used in Egypt at the battle of the Nile, 1799, and at bloody Solferino, 1859.

Cabinet Protests, But Army Ceases Fighting

NEW NAZI THRUST

Break Through, as Allies Make Rescue Effort

PARIS — (AP) — The Belgian army surrendered unconditionally to the Germans Tuesday under orders from King Leopold, breaking the back of the Allied armies of the north and bringing the battle of Flanders to its culminating point.

BERLIN — (AP) — A new breakthrough through the French border fortifications, "on abroad front" was announced by the German high command down its arms on command of its king.

The communique reported heavy fighting against the Allies' "embittered resistance" which it said was partly broken with Nazi legions advancing within six miles of the Belgian city of Bruges, crossing the Scheldt canal west of Valenciennes and capturing the French towns of Orchies, Douai and South Lille.

Capitulation of King Leopold, left an estimated 700,000 Allied soldiers trapped in a space hardly bigger than a good-sized Western cattle ranch.

Allies Seek Rescue

BERNE — (AP) — Thirty Allied divisions—450,000 to 600,000 men—were reported moving into position Tuesday night south of the Aisne river near Reims for a "know-or-never" offensive to rescue the French and British forces trapped in the German's Lille Pocket.

Into this crowded area Tuesday way-laid German dive bombers were unloading lethal cargoes of bombs and machine-gun bullets, determined to paralyze all organized resistance.

With their flank exposed by the Belgian surrender, it seemed only a miracle could save the trapped men from destruction.

By the Associated Press

King Leopold of the Belgians ordered the unconditional surrender of his army Tuesday after an 18-day defense against the German juggernaut invasion.

British naval spokesmen hinted that the British expeditionary force is preparing to withdraw from the present Flanders battlefield.

The Allies lost the military support of about 250,000 men in 18 Belgian divisions; and the French port of Dunkerque, where supplies have been reaching the hemmed-in Allied armies is left undefended.

The surrender was announced to the startled French nation by Premier Reynaud in a bitterly sarcastic speech in which he called the action "with-out precedent in history."

Belgian Premier Hubert Pierlot said the Belgian government has decided to continue to fight, and reorganized the reorganization of the Belgian forces in France.

Pierlot said his government had no part in Leopold's decision and declared "The act of one man does not commit an entire nation."

Allies Ignore Leopold
LONDON — (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons Tuesday in a brief war statement that the British and French would ignore the capitulation ordered by King Leopold, and would carry on with all vigor.

Adding that the Belgian ministers had declared themselves the only legal government of that country, he pointed out that they are determined

Taxi Driver Has the Gift of Gab

Washington, Cabmen Almost Get Into Trouble

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — The Washington taxi drivers, with a gift of gab that shames the most off-spoken congressmen, almost talked themselves into trouble.

So generous are they in pointing out the faults of the capital that the powers that be started a serious move to make them buy guide licenses as well as cab drivers' licenses. Only the ire of the local citizenry, aroused by what they considered an injustice, smothered the move.

Washington loves its hack drivers and well it might. They are as distinctive as strangers in a strange land and yet as much a part of the Washington scene as the Lincoln Memorial. They come from all over, but the sun of Dixie seems to have melted them down to the same general mould of genial loquaciousness.

To understand them, you must understand first that Washington taxis are among the cheapest in the land. The zone system is used. For 20 cents you can ride the two miles from the capitol to the White House. As a matter of fact, you can ride almost anywhere in official Washington for 20 cents. Consequently, nearly all capital life sifts through the hackies' screens. He knows senators, clerks, bookkeepers and barons. One minute, he is chauffeuring the ambassador's lady, the next it's stenographer Judy O'Grady.

A Front Seat Driver
He talks to them all. It isn't weather talk, either. The fat they chew has glistened in it.
Without any pumping, they'll tell you what's going on "up on the Hill"—who's backing what bill and why. They know the political effect of Dewey's speech in the Midwest last night, and why the senator of yonder state hasn't got a chance to come back to congress next year.

One driver I rode with launched on a tactical analysis of the war that would have done credit to a war department expert. Among other things, he explained why the Allies were smart to have abandoned Norway.

"Have you ever been in that country?" he asked. "Well I have. It's impossible to fight anything but guerrilla warfare there. And what's it worth? Very, very little, from a tactical standpoint." The fellow tuned out to be a Frenchman who had been graduated from the Sorbonne, now a naturalized American who fell into the depression. But he's more Washington cabby than French. He had a theory that even in their darkest hour, the Allies should take time out to slap the daylight out of Benito Mussolini.

Another took some time to expound on "the benefits" of what he described as "nice, orderly lynching."

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Washington Correspondent
German Victory Held Catastrophic to U. S. Economy

WASHINGTON — This administration's deep desire to see the allies win the war is by no means due solely to a fear of further German aggression.

Equally important, probably, is the belief that the economic consequences of a sweeping German victory would be little less than catastrophic to the United States.

This is a subject which has been publicly discussed very little. Under the surface, however, it is getting a great deal of attention. Elaborate studies are being made. And in all of this there is being filled in the picture of a world which would be so radically changed by a Hitler triumph that the survival of American democracy itself might be in question.

Here in brief is the way some of the New Deal economists see it:
Assuming a victory which would mean German dominance of Europe, the first consequence would be a complete reorganization of international trade. What is left of "normal" trade would practically vanish; trade would go on a barter basis.

U. S. Exports Would Fall Off
Europe, then, would buy in the world market only where it could sell an equal amount in return. It needs huge quantities of farm products and other raw materials; instead of buying them from the United States, it would be far more likely to buy them from non-industrial nations, like those of South America, which could take its own manufactured goods in equal quantity in return.

American agricultural exports would drop to an all-time low. The farm surplus problem, which has cost the breath, while the car sped up the drive toward Bentley's house.

If he could get inside, Larry figured he might find some place to hide, might overhear Bentley and the flyer. He might even discover the clew that would convict Bentley. He decided to risk it.

He crossed the intervening space to the side of the hangar at a run, paused panting at the door. Then he edged it open.

There was a light near the motor of the plane. Larry could see the mechanic's shoulders hunched over the motor, his feet on the step-ladder beside the plane. The rest of the hangar was in semi-darkness.

Bentley's own ship was nearer. If he could cross to the plane, he could slip inside Bentley's own ship, overhear everything that was said. It would be the last place they'd think of looking for him.

The mechanic climbed down from the ladder. Larry froze against the wall. But the man turned, walked to a bench at the far side of the hangar.

In that moment Larry slipped through the door, closed it softly, and crossed to the cabin plan. Before the mechanic turned around he was crouched in the luggage space behind the pilot's seat. The window at the left was open. He could hear the mechanic whistling softly as he climbed the ladder again.

It must have been half an hour before the door opened again to admit Bentley and the pilot. "Ship's okay now, Mike," the mechanic called. "Oil line was clogged."

"Good," came Bentley's voice. Then to the pilot: "You tell the 'Little Man' to send the next stuff as scheduled. We're all right here and the east will take all we can handle."

"That trouble we had a while back has all cleared up and no one suspects us around here," he laughed. "Imagine any of these dumb coveners ever getting wise to the fact that Mike Bentley's running dope. And even if they did, no one could prove it."

"You keep the stuff coming. You'll get your money on the line, when you bring it in."

"That's all right by me," Larry heard the pilot answer. "I'll be back next week. You'll get the usual tip. . . Ship's okay now. I'm getting out of here. I'll stop at the usual place for gas."

The hangar doors rattled open, the ship creaked as it was wheeled outside. Larry heard the motor start, settle into a roar, then fade away. The hangar was bright as

Nazis Try to Win Conquered People

Man Who Saw Oslo Fall Describes German Methods

By WILLIS THORNTON
NA Service Staff Correspondent
The diabolically clever methods by which the Germans are trying to win over the peoples they have conquered are revealed by Berge M. Heede, Norwegian-born naturalized American citizen, who was living in Oslo when the Germans came. Heede has just returned to the U. S.

"The Germans are obviously setting down for a long occupation," says Heede, who left Oslo April 29. "Their soldiers are scrupulously polite. Their discipline is marvelous. Every effort is made to avoid offending the Norwegians. Nothing is stolen. Business is encouraged to continue, though of course the Germans spend only a special kind of 'funny money,' printed up in advance and good only in Germany."

"Every German soldier was provided in advance with a sheet of instructions on how to conduct himself in Norway," says Heede. "This analyzed very cleverly the Norwegian character and the attitude best calculated to appeal to it. The discipline was such that the German soldiers held closely to these instructions. I know of no cases of looting or of wanton destruction by individual soldiers."

The instructions, found on German dead, ran along these lines: "You are not landing in an enemy country. You arrive to protect the country and its people, who have a strong feeling of national pride. Therefore, do nothing to offend the national honor."

The Norwegians love freedom and are unwilling to submit to arbitrary authority. They don't like militarism. Therefore, give few orders. Peremptory orders would antagonize the people. Tell them in a logical way what is to be done, and thus win their cooperation."

The Norwegian's home is holy to him, but he is very hospitable. People leave their houses unlocked and stealing is considered a great disgrace. Therefore, never go where you are not asked; respect property."

The Norwegians have no understanding of war, and almost all of them dislike Nazism. Therefore, do not discuss politics."

"The Germans are polite and ingratiating," says Heede. The release of war prisoners was another effort of Hitler to swing the Norwegians over to his side. Since the basing of the German fleet in Oslo, the best harbor in that part of Europe, it is established a permanent relationship there.

"Despite influx of the German 'funny money' between half a million and a million Norwegians are without their ordinary means of support. Thousands fled to the hills to escape the bombers, taking nothing with them. When they returned, say to Elverum or Stavanger, they found their homes leveled to the earth, their businesses gone. Thousands fled to Sweden, where they are helpless. Many of the refugees are Americans, unable to get money from home, and dependent on the bounty of already impoverished Norwegian friends."

Heede, an importer, is advising the Norwegian Relief Fund in its drive for urgently-needed money, food and clothing for almost a third of Norway's people deprived of these things by the German invaders.

Japan to "Honor" Chinese War Dead
PEIPING, North China.—(P)—At the suggestion of Prince Chichibu, brother of the Japanese Emperor, war monuments for Chinese war dead will be created side by side with those for Japanese soldiers killed in China.

Such monuments will be raised in 25 cities throughout the occupied areas, where Japanese-sponsored Chinese regimes have been asked to "cooperate" in financing the project.

Natural Assumption
AKRON, O.—(P)—Joe Owens heard the judge impose a 30-day sentence for non-support but missed hearing the word "suspended." So—Jailer Fred Mayer had a hard time convincing Owens that there wasn't a cell awaiting him.

government hundreds of millions in the last seven years, would become ever so much worse. Cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco—all would be terribly affected. A huge acreage would have to be retired from their production. Farm prices would go 'way down.

Along with this, all industries which are on an export basis would decline sharply; and the decline in farm buying power would hit the other industries which do not depend on foreign markets.

The result would be, as economists here see it, a lower national income, much greater subsidies for agriculture, heavier spending for relief, probably some elaborate rural-work-relief program . . . plus the new heavier spending on defense. Hand in hand with that would go, either an ever-mounting government deficit, or drastically increased taxes—or, possibly, some of both.

Furthermore, with world trade on a barter basis, the United States would have to set up fairly strict production controls in order to conduct any foreign trade at all. Setting up such controls, establishing huge government corporations to handle the trade, doing all of this in a declining market in the face of continued depression at home—all of this, it is suggested, would be impossible unless the United States adopted for use at home at least some of the methods of the totalitarian.

It makes a gloomy picture. Probably you can see flaws in it; doubtless there are plenty of economists who will disagree with it. But it does help to explain why this administration is so very anxious that Hitler be beaten.

Worries of Parachute Jump

OAKLAND, Calif.—(P)—You might not be able to think of it during the breathless excitement of your first parachute jump, but here is a tip that instructor Johnny Maggi gives his students in the Civilian Pilots Training school.
"Hand on to this ring," he tells them, displaying the circle at the end of the ripcord. "If you lose it it'll cost you $2.25."

King Leopold Gives

to continue the war despite the king. Meanwhile Britain gathered her forces for a supreme effort to break the German ring of steel around her expeditionary force in Flanders.

Naval spokesmen admitted great dangers would be faced in any attempt to bring the force out by way of the heavily bombed Channel ports.

Belgians Disown King
PARIS.—(P)—Belgian leaders in France announced Tuesday they had decided to disown King Leopold after his order for the unconditional surrender of the Belgian army.

The leaders said they would meet at the Belgian embassy Tuesday to lay charges against the 38-year-old monarch and to organize a provisional government.

Aim to Destroy Allies
BERLIN.—(P)—German forces lunged through the Allied Flanders line almost to Ypres Monday, adding a length to the steel wall with which they are trying to split the Allied armies in northern France and Belgium. Both sides were fighting to pocket large units of the opposing army.

The German goal was control of the English Channel coast on which they have a foothold at Boulogne and claim another at Calais.

Germany—in this campaign as well as in Poland and Norway—has not departed from the solid military policy of destroying the enemy's army as the best way of conquering. On this basis some observers argue that not England but the French army, standing between the Germans and Paris, must face the next blows of the Reich's army.

The Germans have been making efforts to soften resistance against either an advance on Paris or a direct invasion of England. British ship communications with France have been bombed constantly, with the high command reporting a heavy toll of transports and supply ships.

Having bottled up about 1,000,000 diars holding that line on the coastal plains of Flanders and Artois, the Nazis were trying to break up the defense by splitting the trapped Allied forces.

Two German thrusts, one wheeling eastward from the coast and the other pushing northwestward from the north of Lille. One was said to have penetrated northeast of Lyons, north of Arras were reported Monday night of Vimy Ridge, and the other to have advanced close to Ypres, on the opposite side of the gap which the Nazis are attempting to close.

So Don't Worry If You See a Coati
SACRAMENTO, Calif.—(P)—The Coati mundi, a predatory little animal that scientists have known was spreading out from its Mexican habitat, has now been definitely identified in California. The state division of fish and game described the newcomer as about the size of a raccoon and living on either fruit or flesh.

Pet Isn't Petted
OLYMPIA, Wash.—(P)—W. P. Taylor and his family are fond of—but do not fondle—Betsy, a black widow spider which is kept in the front room in a glass-covered bowl. Taylor says the pet is able to recognize him and climbs to the top of the bowl at his approach.

BUTTE, Mont.—(P)—One who drives a customer right out of the sales room is the way William Corbett, car salesman, used.

"Try it," generously suggested Corbett.
The customer stepped on the starter. The car scooted right through the plate glass window.

British Trade Is Missing the Boat

England Has Already Lost Round With Germany

By MILTON BRONNER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent LONDON.—The British government, having missed one bus with Russia, is about to miss a second one, unless all signs fail.

The first bus was the one marked "Alliance with Nazi Germany."

The second one is marked "Trade Agreement with Russia."

The British government has always mistrusted one "ism" more than another. Nominally, it had equal diplomatic relations with Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy and Red Russia.

But the old school "die hards" were more afraid of red shirts than they were of black or brown.

So they treated Russia as if it were a minor power. They forgot the boss in the Kremlin has his pride.

Even when Hitler was most raucous against the Bolsheviks, he took care to tell Moscow some of his most accomplished diplomats.

England sent Sir William Seeds, a worthy man, but one who had never held a great diplomatic post.

Hitler Sends His Pet

Then last year, when Britain was anxiously trying to get Russia to come into a pact to assure Poland against Nazi aggression, it did not send to Moscow Prime Minister Chamberlain or Lord Halifax, foreign secretary, although the former had paid pilgrimage to Hitler to prevent England sent William Strang, another worthy individual, but a man whose highest foreign diplomatic post had been that of counselor to the British Embassy in Moscow. Not long afterward Hitler sent to the Kremlin his pet Foreign Minister, Von Ribbentrop—to button up a German-Russian pact.

England and Russia are now vaguely talking about a trade pact. The Russians have put forth two clauses.

A promise that what they import from Britain will not be handed over to Nazi Germany.

A refusal to promise that Russia will not sell to Germany some of Russia's own products. The British view is that these things cancel each other out. Thus, Russia might sell Germany 200,000 tons of a certain product and then serve its own home needs by buying 200,000 tons from Britain.

Red Cross Asks Aid For Injured

The American Red Cross has asked for contributions toward a $10,000,000 war aid fund to assist in the work of caring for those injured in the European conflict and also to provide food, clothing and medical care for non-combatants in the war-stricken areas. In all wars civilians pay a high price in suffering. The boy in the censored photo above is being treated for wounds received during an air raid.

OUT OUR WAY

By J. R. Williams

their counter-view to me: Russia has a pact with Germany. Part of that pact is a trade agreement. What Russia has promised to sell to Germany it intends to sell. Britain cannot prevent that. But the Soviet-Nazi trade agreement covers to an agreement with Russia also, covering 1941 and the years following that, substituting Britain for Germany in trade.

According to my Russian informant, their country could send to Britain by a trade agreement, products that are very valuable. These comprise oil, flax for linen and certain minerals needed in high grade steel making. But, above all, they say Russia could sell England what the Nazi closing of the Baltic Sea has denied the British-European timber.

In return Russia would want machinery of all kinds, tin and rubber. The bulk of the world's tin and rubber comes from the British colony of Malaya and from the Dutch East Indies. The British do not want to take any chances of tin and rubber being handed over to Germany. These materials are both vital in war-making and the Nazis are clamoring for them. They have invented an ersatz rubber, but the process is still costly and slow. Even the Nazis however, have not been able to invent an ersatz tin.

Fashions and Food are Always Akin

Food Accessories Often Like Ladies' Clothes

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

AP Feature Service Writer

Often it's the clever little accessory—a bright scarf, a tricky belt, or a snappy hat—that makes a costume.

Did you ever think of applying that idea to food on days when dinner seems stodgy, no matter how you've tried to make it nice?

Meat, fish and vegetables all are good in their own right; they will fill a person's hungry stomach. But most of us prefer our broccolis gilded. Here are some suggestions:

Fish stead, for instance, will have a much wider appeal when served with this Creole Sauce: Brown 3 tablespoons each of chopped onions, green peppers and celery in 4 tablespoons of fat melted in a frying pan. Mix in 4 tablespoons of flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon paprika. Then pour in a cup each of tomato juice and water. Simmer 5 minutes, mix in 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1/2 tablespoon of chopped sweet pickles. Pour over the fish or pass it in a bowl.

Here is a spring ensemble that combines foods low in cost, but high in flavor. Make up 3 cups of savory white sauce and pour it over four halved, hardcooked eggs, arranged in a shallow baking pan, buttered. Add 1 cup of cooked peas, lima beans or asparagus and then sprinkle the top generously with grated or finely cut cheese. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

For another casserole number try Macaroni Supreme. It, too, is not costly and is easy to make. Mix 2 cups cooked macaroni, 1/2 pound hamburger steak (uncooked), 1/2 cup each of chopped parsley, onions and pimiento. Season with salt and pepper and add 1 cup milk and 2 tablespoons butter, melted. Pour into a buttered shallow baking dish and bake until browned on top—about 20 minutes. Serve with fresh asparagus or spinach, corn and water. Simmer 5 minutes, mix in 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1/2 tablespoon of chopped sweet pickles. Pour over the fish or pass it in a bowl.

Chicken loaf (You can make a fish loaf by substituting the fish for chicken) will please the family and can be served hot or cold. It makes a delicious party food and loves to go to picnics. Here is the recipe for 8 generous servings: Mix 1 1/4 cups chopped cooked chicken, 2-3 cup mashed potatoes, 1/2 cup soft bread and 2-3 cup cooked lima beans. Stir lightly and add 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 teaspoon celery salt and 1 tablespoon minced parsley. Pour in 2 eggs, beaten, 1/2 cup milk and 2 tablespoons of butter or chicken fat, melted. Place in a buttered loaf pan and bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven, unmold carefully. Regular cream chicken gravy, a well seasoned mushroom sauce or flignant tomato sauce go with this loaf.
